nators were Amrita, Student-Teacher, School of Education (SOED), Muskan Dagar Student-Teacher, School of Education (SOED), and Aashi, student coordinator NSS School of Education (SOED), K.R. Mangalam University.

Highlights of the Programme-

- a. Awareness Campaign: The campaign included posters, banners, and social media posts to spread the message about the significance of environmental conservation.
- b. A small Nukaad Natak was also performed by the students to grab the attention of villagers. Students took out the rally to emphasize the theme #BeatPlasticPollution.
- c. Tree Plantation Drive: A large-scale tree plantation drive was organized in collaboration with NSS volunteers. Several saplings were planted across public spaces, schools, and residential areas to enhance green cover and mitigate climate change effects.
- d. Clean-up Drives: Clean-up drives were conducted in public areas which are more prone to littering. Students actively participated in cleaning the surroundings, collecting and disposing of waste appropriately.
- e. Educational Campaigns: NSS volunteers & Students of SOED visited local schools and colleges to conduct interactive sessions on environmental conservation. Through presentations, games, and discussions, students were sensitized to the importance of sustainable living.

Outcome

- a. Increased Awareness: The programme successfully raised awareness among a large number of community members regarding environmental issues, sustainable practices, and the importance of protecting nature.
- b. Community Engagement: The active participation of NSS volunteers and community members in various activities demonstrated their commitment to environmental conservation. The programme instilled a sense of responsibility and ownership among individuals towards the environment.

Conclusion:

The Extension & Outreach Programme, in collaboration with NSS, made a significant impact in commemorating World Environment Day. Through its activities, the programme successfully raised awareness, engaged the community, and fostered a sense of responsibility towards the environment. The outcomes achieved contribute to long-term environmental sustainability and encourage individuals to be proactive agents of change. The programme serves as a model for future initiatives aiming to address environmental challenges.
