The political interpretation of Human Rights as per the convenience of the first and second world countries was discussed. Further how the role of the third world countries was kept in abeyance.

The content of the session was taken from UDHR, ICCPR, ICESCR, ICEARD, Protection of Human Rights Act, 1993 and Cartagena Declaration. In conclusion it was discussed that sharing of responsibility should be the approach of the nations. Also the international organizations must not transmit the literature which suits the ideology of the western countries and should not follow only the positivist approach where the study is made by bifurcating politics from the ground
