MESSAGE FROM THE LEADERSHIP

The humanities form the essence of human understanding and cultural growth. I take pride in the dedication of our faculty and students who pursue innovative research and creative expression across literature, philosophy, psychology, and social sciences. Their collective efforts not only enrich our academic environment but also contribute to the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, especially those promoting quality education, equality, and peace.

The School of Humanities at K.R. Mangalam University continues to make remarkable progress in nurturing creativity, critical thinking, and social awareness. With its strong emphasis on interdisciplinary learning, research, and community engagement, the School empowers students to explore ideas that inspire dialogue, empathy, and meaningful change.

EDITORIAL

We're delighted to share a glimpse into the dynamic world of the School of Humanities, where learning transcends classrooms and ideas shape futures.

At SOHS, we believe that exploring the human experience lies at the heart of true education. Our programs foster critical thinking, creativity, and empathy—skills that go beyond academics to define who we are as individuals and as a society. From literature and history to politics, economics, and psychology, we empower students to see the world through diverse lenses and lead with wisdom and compassion.

In a technology-driven age, the humanities remind us to pause, reflect, and care. They ground us, inspire us, and prepare us to navigate life's complexities with clarity and purpose. Through the passion of our students, the dedication of our faculty, and the achievements of our alumni, we nurture thoughtful and resilient leaders who are ready to make a difference.

This edition of our newsletter celebrates the spirit of SOHS—a testament to imagination, inquiry, and the enduring power of the humanities. We hope it inspires you as much as it inspires us.

FROM THE DESK OF IQAC COORDINATOR

At the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), we strive to foster a culture of excellence through systematic and sustained efforts that enhance teaching, research, and community outreach. Each contribution featured in this edition—be it faculty scholarship, student creativity, or social initiatives—symbolizes our collective endeavour towards inclusive growth and holistic development.

Dear Readers,

It gives me immense pleasure to extend my warm greetings on the release of the April–June 2025 edition of our quarterly newsletter, for Humanities. This publication serves as a reflection of the academic vitality, creative pursuits, and intellectual engagement that define the School of Humanities. It also stands as a testimony to our enduring commitment to quality assurance and continuous improvement.

At the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), we strive to foster a culture of excellence through systematic and sustained efforts that enhance teaching, research, and community outreach. Each contribution featured in this edition—be it faculty scholarship, student creativity, or social initiatives—symbolizes our collective endeavour towards inclusive growth and holistic development.

I sincerely appreciate the dedicated efforts of the editorial team, contributors, and the leadership of the School for presenting such an insightful and inspiring issue. I encourage all readers to continue exploring new frontiers of knowledge while upholding the core values of integrity, empathy, and innovation.

Warm regards,

Editor

"Kindness at the Core: Shaping a Culture of Belonging"

Every year, as the academic calendar resets and new faces arrive on campus—eager, uncertain, full of questions—I find myself reflecting on the quiet, often unnoticed things that shape our experience of university life. Yes, academic excellence matters. So do credentials, grades, and career goals. But what stays with us long after we've moved on are the moments when someone made us feel seen, safe, and welcome.

That feeling—the sense that we belong—is often created not through grand gestures, but through small, consistent acts of kindness. A smile in the hallway. A shared note. An invitation to sit together at lunch. A simple, sincere “How are you doing?” followed by the patience to actually listen.

These are the building blocks of a culture of empathy. And as educators—especially those of us in the liberal arts—we believe that shaping character matters just as much as sharpening intellect. We don't just want you to be knowledgeable. We want you to be human with each other.

Why Kindness Matters—Especially Now

Today's students face immense pressure—academic, emotional, even social. It's easy to retreat into our own worlds, especially when everything moves fast and everyone seems busy. But I'd argue that this is exactly when kindness matters most. It slows us down just enough to connect. It creates space for others to feel like they belong.

For new students arriving on campus—perhaps far from home, unfamiliar with the systems, unsure of their place—kindness can mean everything. Your one kind gesture might be what helps someone feel less alone in those first weeks, when everything feels overwhelming. We often don't realize the impact we're having in the moment, but it matters. It always matters.

Empathy Isn't Just a Trait—It's a Choice

Empathy isn't something you're born with or without. It's something we practice. The humanities teach us this well—whether through literature that expands our understanding of others, history that helps us learn from shared human struggle, or political science that explores the structures shaping our society.

Empathy grows when we choose to engage, to ask questions, to listen without rushing to respond. And this doesn't just happen in classrooms. It happens in dorm rooms, WhatsApp groups, club meetings, and late-night walks across campus. Our community is built in those everyday interactions.

You Set the Tone

If you've been part of this campus for a while, know that your behavior helps shape what newer students believe is possible here. They'll look to you—consciously or not—for cues. Do people help each other? Are we kind to staff and faculty? Do we create room for people who are different from us to feel welcome?

Dr. Srishti Srivastava

Assistant Professor, Political Science
School of Humanities

You don't need to be perfect. You don't need to be outgoing or extroverted. But you can be intentional. You can notice when someone is sitting alone. You can ask someone how their first week is going. And most importantly, you can listen—really listen—when they answer.

Building a Campus That Cares

Universities are often seen as places of competition, but they can just as powerfully be places of compassion. And when compassion becomes part of the culture, it's not just the “new” students who benefit. Everyone does. Kindness helps us feel more connected, more resilient, and better able to face challenges.

There are so many ways to contribute: peer mentoring, student-led support groups, inclusive classroom discussions, or even just being open about your own experiences so others feel less alone in theirs. These are not small things. These are the seeds of a more caring campus.

A Gentle Invitation

As this new semester begins, I invite you to pause and look around—not just at what you need to do, but who you might be able to support. If you've found your footing here, help someone else find theirs. If you've had a hard time yourself, maybe you can recognize that struggle in someone else and reach out.

Kindness is not a sign of weakness. It's an act of courage. And it's one we need more of—in our universities, in our communities, and in the world beyond.

Let's build that kind of culture together.

ADRIFT WITHIN, ANCHORED BEYOND

In the heart of the endless, whispering sea,
I search for a quiet refuge within me.
Waves of chaos crash and roar,
Yet I breathe them in, craving no more.

No guiding voice, no beacon's glow,
Just silent winds where wild tides flow.
I wish to be that rare, untamed stone—
A hidden gem, found by none alone.

I trace my faults in shadows past,
Seeking peace where storms won't last.
For the soul finds calm when truths are known,
And smiles are carved where sorrows have grown.

SCHOOL EVENT CHRONICLES

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON ENVISIONING THE FUTURE INDIA: OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES AHEAD FOR VIKSIT BHARAT 2047, 9 - 10 MAY 2025

The School of Humanities, K.R. Mangalam University, successfully organised a two-day International Conference on the theme “Envisioning the Future India: Opportunities and Challenges Ahead for Viksit Bharat 2047” on 9-10 May 2025. The conference served as a vibrant platform for academicians, researchers, policymakers, and students to deliberate on India’s developmental roadmap towards 2047.

The event was inaugurated by Justice (Dr.) Mukundam Sharma, Former Judge, Supreme Court of India, as Chief Guest, and Dr. Subodh Kumar as Guest of Honour. Distinguished keynote speakers included Prof. (Dr.) Gulsun Kurubacak Cakir (Ankara University, Turkey), Prof. Sushil Chandra, Mr. Steven Schonberger (World Bank, Retd.), and Ms. Nica Louie (US Environmental Protection Agency, Retd.).

A special panel discussion on “Inclusive Growth and Well-being” featured eminent experts: Mr. Iqbal Ahmad (Senior Broadcast Journalist, BBC), Prof. Mehraj Uddin Mir (Motilal Nehru Chair, KRMU), Dr. Nitya Nanda (Director, Council for Social Development), and Prof. (Dr.) Meenakshi Mittal (Lady Irwin College, University of Delhi).

Across four technical sessions and the panel discussion, over 120 papers were submitted, with 80 presenters from 19 universities and organisations. Discussions covered key themes such as sustainable growth, inclusive governance, digital transformation, mental health, gender equality, and cultural synergy.

The valedictory session concluded with the felicitation of best paper presenters and highlighted collaborative strategies for achieving Viksit Bharat 2047. Participants praised the event’s intellectual rigour, making it a landmark academic achievement.

FAREWELL 2025 HASTA LA VISTA

On April 16, 2025, School of Humanities, KRMU, organized a farewell aptly named "Hasta la Vista" for the graduating batch of students. The event commenced with the lamp-lighting ceremony by the Dean and the faculty members of SOHS. This was followed by a warm welcome address extended by Prof. (Dr.) Tania Gupta. Next, there were multiple music and dance performances by the students of second and fourth semester of undergraduate programs. This was followed by Dean's Honor List Distribution Ceremony to honour the students' academic achievements. To crown the Mr. and Ms. Farewell, and Mr. and Ms. Best-dressed, students participated in a brief introduction round, talent show, and ramp-walk. The judges for the session were Dr. Nudrat Jahan and Dr. Nandini Ahlawat. Mr. Saransh and Ms. Sia Juneja were crowned the Mr. and Ms. Farewell. Next there was a cake-cutting session along with photo sessions, followed by a grand lunch. Post-lunch, there was a vibrant DJ session enjoyed by the students and the faculty. The session was coordinated by Dr. Kartika Saharan, Dr. Madhurima Mukherjee, and Ms. Muskan Sethi, Assistant Professor, SOHS, with cooperation received from the student coordinators in smooth conduction of the event. With the presence of the respected Dean, esteemed faculty members, and the enthusiastic students of SOHS, the "Hasta la Vista" farewell will remain etched in the hearts and minds of all those who were part of it.

TRAINING PROGRAM ON DIFFERENTIATED TEACHING STRATEGIES FOR DIVERSE LEARNERS

The School of Humanities, under the aegis of IQAC, K.R. Mangalam University, organized a two-day training program on “Differentiated Teaching Strategies for Diverse Learners” on 20th and 21st May 2025.

On Day 1, Prof. (Dr.) Raghuvir Singh, Vice-Chancellor, KRMU, explained that “differentiated” implies a customized, tailor-made approach to teaching rather than a one-size-fits-all model. He highlighted that students differ in knowledge levels, cognitive abilities, learning styles, interests, readiness, and pace of learning. Dr. Singh distinguished between differentiated teaching (teacher strategies) and differentiated learning (student needs), emphasizing the need for active learning and diverse teaching models.

On Day 2, Prof. (Dr.) Tania Gupta, Director IQAC and Dean, School of Education, stressed the importance of embracing student diversity and creating inclusive learning spaces. She discussed addressing visible and invisible diversities, infrastructure gaps for students with disabilities, and educators’ ethical responsibility in fostering equity.

The program concluded by underscoring the significance of differentiated strategies in promoting inclusivity and student engagement.

ORIENTATION PROGRAMME ON COUNSELLING SKILLS FOR TEACHERS

The School of Humanities at K. R. Mangalam University, under the aegis of the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), organized an Orientation Programme on “Counselling Skills for Teachers to Support Holistic Student Development” on 14th May 2025. The session aimed to equip faculty with practical strategies to address students’ diverse learning and emotional needs, aligning with SDG 4 on quality education and sustainable development.

The session was conducted by Dr. Mansi Yadav, Counselling Psychologist and Assistant Professor, School of Humanities. She highlighted the crucial role of teachers in understanding students’ psychological well-being, identifying behavioural patterns, and providing empathetic support to promote holistic development.

The programme emphasized early intervention, preventive counselling, and fostering safe, inclusive classroom spaces. Key aspects discussed included active listening, empathy, conflict resolution, and student engagement strategies, supported by interactive activities and case-based examples.

The event reinforced the university’s commitment to quality education and student welfare, empowering teachers to create supportive and inclusive learning environments.

FOREX FIESTA: EXPLORE THE CURRENCY MARKET

The Investment Club of K.R. Mangalam University successfully organized an insightful and engaging event titled “Forex Fiesta” on April 15, 2025. The workshop was aimed at equipping students with a practical understanding of the foreign exchange (forex) market, its operational structure, trading mechanisms, and the application of currency trading in global finance. The event was based on hands-on session conducted by Mr. Shwetank, a B.Tech student and active member of the Investment Club. With his strong interest in financial markets and real-time trading, Mr. Shwetank delivered an interactive and informative workshop that demystified complex forex concepts for students from various disciplines.

TREASURE HUNT GAME

The Investment Club of K. R. Mangalam University organized an intellectually stimulating Treasure Hunt Game on April 29, 2025, aimed at promoting financial literacy and student engagement. The event combined the thrill of exploration with the fundamentals of investment knowledge, encouraging students to learn through teamwork, strategy, and fun.

A total of 20 students from various academic streams participated enthusiastically. The game took place across the university campus, where clues and tasks related to financial and investment concepts were strategically placed at different checkpoints. Participants worked in teams to solve puzzles, decode clues, and identify investment terms, budgeting strategies, interest rates, and market indices.

The event successfully fostered critical skills such as teamwork, problem-solving, time management, and strategic thinking. It provided an interactive platform for students to understand key financial concepts while enjoying an exciting and competitive learning experience.
