Introduction:

Nukkad Natak, also known as street play, is a form of dramatic performance that takes place in public spaces, such as streets, parks, and community gatherings. Originating in India, Nukkad Natak has become a popular medium for conveying social messages, raising awareness about important issues, and engaging with audiences directly. The Nukkad Natak "Do Good, Be Good" was organized by NSS, K R Mangalam University at Daulah village, Sohna on 15th April 2024.

Objectives:

The objective of nukkad natak is to promote positive values, kindness, and humanity in society by encouraging the behavioral change of individuals to adopt small acts of kindness and generosity in their interactions with others.

Content:

The event was started by Dr. Neeraj Kumari where she told the motive of the nukkad natak. The story of nukkad natak revolved around the lives of ordinary people facing moral dilemmas and challenges in their day-to-day interactions. The play addressed honesty versus deception and integrity versus corruption which are common ethical dilemmas faced by individuals in society. The Nukkad Natak conveyed a message of empowerment, encouraging the audience to embrace goodness and positive behavior as catalysts for personal growth and societal well-being. Through the dramatic scenes and dialogues, NSS volunteers portrayed various scenarios highlighting the consequences of both good and bad actions.

The performance of NSS volunteers succeeded in capturing the hearts and minds of the audience, inspiring them to reflect on their own actions and choices. It reinforced the idea that by doing good, individuals can contribute to creating a more compassionate and harmonious world.

Conclusions:

The Nukkad Natak "Do Good, Be Good" offered a unique opportunity to spread messages of kindness, empathy, and humanity in an engaging and interactive manner. By inspiring individuals to embrace these values and take positive actions in their lives, the play contributed to the creation of a more compassionate and harmonious society. In the last, Dr. Neeraj Kumari expressed her gratitude to the villagers for being there to motivate the performance of NSS volunteers and sparing some time from their busy schedule.

Event outcome:

The Nukkad Natak effectively raised awareness about the importance of kindness and empathy in promoting social cohesion and well-being.
