Introduce policy to regulate dahi handi, other festivals as per capacity of roads: Bombay HC

Mumbai: The Bombay High Court on Wednesday asked the Maharashtra government to re-visit and consider from next year a comprehensive modified policy to regulate celebrations of dahi handi and other festivals, keeping in mind the density of population in Mumbai and capacity of public roads.

The court said that public roads are no longer suitable to hold such events with large numbers of participants and said the "best way is not to grant permission for such events on public roads". It said a balance should be struck between the need for public expression of religious sentiments and the protection of larger public interest to reduce inconvenience of road users and local residents.

A division bench of Justice Sunil B Shukre and Firdosh P Pooniwalla was hearing a plea by Sachin Basare, a member of Shiv Sena (UBT).

ISRO team in JU to find ways to curb ragging

ENS & PTI KOLKATA, SEPTEMBER 6

WEEKS AFTER a 17-year-old Jadavpur University (JU) student died allegedly after he was ragged, a team of Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) on Wednesday visited the university in Kolkata and took stock of the security measures on the campus.

Following the student's death, Governor CV Ananda Bose, in his capacity as chancellor of the state university, had sought ISRO's help to stop ragging on the campus.

"They deliberated on beefing up security with the use of remote sensing technology. They also discussed ways to prevent the entry of outsiders into the campus and monitor the movement of people so that narcotic substances are not consumed. They will give inputs to our security team," said interim vice-chancellor Buddhadeb Sau, adding the ISRO team discussed ways to prevent ragging in the hostels through surveillance but without intruding into the private space of students. "It is a data-based project in which experts from both ISRO and JU are participating. They will tell us about their observations and we will share ours with them. The university will take follow-up steps accordingly," Sau said.

Sources said the ISRO team may suggest the use of artificial intelligence to curb ragging on the campus.
