MESSAGE FROM LEADERSHIP

Dear Students, Faculty, and Visitors,

It is with great pride and enthusiasm that I welcome you to K.R. Mangalam University, an institution committed to academic excellence, innovation, and holistic development. Our university is a thriving hub of learning and discovery, where students are empowered to pursue their passions, develop their skills, and contribute to society in meaningful ways. At K.R. Mangalam University, we believe in the transformative power of education. Our diverse academic programs, including those offered by the School of Humanities, are designed to nurture critical thinking, creativity, and global perspectives. We are dedicated to fostering an inclusive and supportive environment where every member of our community can thrive.

I am particularly pleased to highlight the School of Humanities, which plays a pivotal role in shaping well-rounded individuals who are not only knowledgeable in their chosen fields but also equipped with the ethical and cultural insights needed to navigate the complexities of our world. The introduction of the SOHS newsletter is a testament to the dynamic and vibrant nature of the school. This initiative will serve as a platform to document and celebrate the myriad activities, events, and achievements of both students and faculty, reflecting the spirit of innovation and excellence that defines our university. As we continue to grow and evolve, I encourage you to explore the opportunities that K.R. Mangalam University offers. Whether you are a prospective student, a current member of our community, or a visitor, you will find a wealth of resources and support to help you achieve your goals. Let us move forward together, committed to inspiring, innovating, and making a positive impact on the world through the pursuit of knowledge and the power of the humanities.

Warm regards,

Prof. Raghuvir Singh

MESSAGE FROM DEAN

It is my pleasure to connect with you through this edition of Perspectives. As the Dean of the School of Humanities at K.R. Mangalam University, I am proud to represent a diverse and dynamic academic community where critical thinking, creativity, and empathy form the foundation of our educational philosophy.

At the heart of the humanities lies the belief that understanding human experiences, across time and place, is essential to personal and societal growth. Through our courses in literature, history, philosophy, psychology, and languages, we provide students with the tools to critically engage with the world, question assumptions, and develop a nuanced understanding of the global challenges we face today. Our interdisciplinary approach encourages students to think across boundaries, drawing connections between various fields of study to arrive at a more comprehensive understanding of human existence.

In today's fast-paced world, where technology and innovation often take center stage, the role of the humanities remains crucial. The skills of empathy, critical thinking, ethical reasoning, and cultural awareness that we cultivate in our students are more relevant than ever. As educators, we are not just imparting knowledge but also inspiring students to become thoughtful leaders, who can engage with the complexities of modern life with insight and compassion.

As we move forward, I invite each one of you to be an active participant in this journey of discovery and reflection. The humanities offer us a lens through which we can better understand ourselves and the world we live in, and it is this perspective that will empower us to create a more inclusive, thoughtful, and compassionate society.

Prof. (Dr.) Tania Gupta

SCHOOL VISION & MISSION

The School of Humanities offers a rich academic environment, fostering critical thinking, creativity, and cultural understanding. With diverse programs spanning literature, philosophy, history, and more, students engage in interdisciplinary exploration. Our faculty's expertise and innovative approaches prepare graduates for dynamic careers and meaningful contributions to society.

VISION

The School of Humanities, K.R. Mangalam University has the vision to equip the students with critical thinking, problem solving, creativity, and collaboration skills along with professional knowledge.

MISSION

To promote cross-curricular innovation with a focus on developing a strong knowledge and skills base.

2. To contribute significantly towards the larger institutional mission of instilling lifelong learning.
3. To promote humanitarian goals of global peace, sensitivity and cooperation through inclusive and dynamic curriculum.
4. To promote analytical and critical research skills, scientific enquiry and creative thinking among the students.
5. To provide opportunities to acquire language proficiency and socio-cultural-philosophical awareness.
6. To promote awareness on socio-economic issues at regional, national, and global levels through cooperative learning reinforced by classroom teaching, experiential learning, and research.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

"From Shadows to Spotlight The Role of Unsung Heroes in Unlocking the Demographic Dividend"

Dr. Renu Verma
Professor, Economics
School of Humanities

Much of the public discourse on Indian demographics focuses on the youth bulge and the challenge of utilizing the “demographic dividend”. India’s population demography is changing and there is a new class of affluent senior citizens showing strength in numbers and spending power. It is estimated that the proportion of older persons in the total population will increase from 8.6 per cent in 2011 to 20.8 per cent in 2050. This rapidly growing affluent generation has the ability to present an opportunity to various business segment to expand and contributing significantly in the growth of the country. The increasing proportion of working-age individuals in India's population presents significant potential for economic growth and prosperity. However, the rising share of elderly citizens in the country should not be overlooked, as they too can make valuable contributions to the realization of this demographic dividend.

Unfortunately, whenever we discuss about the demographic dividend in India, most of the discussion takes place around Gen Z, but it is actually Gen X, the soon to be silver segment. A McKinsey global institute report in 2016 found that the older consumers in developed economies spend more per head than younger people. The primary reason for this trend is significant healthcare spending, but it is also anticipated that this demographic will account for over 40% of growth in consumption related to housing, transportation, and entertainment in the United States. Similarly, in India, there are numerous areas where these often-overlooked individuals can significantly contribute to the nation's growth in various ways. However, it is evident that this aspect of the demographic dividend is frequently ignored, as we fail to recognize the potential of this segment of society.

The first area where the opportunity lies is real estate where the contribution of this sections has not been identified. For example, India has seen a significant surge in the number of senior living projects in last decades. These kinds of projects have huge potential to create backward and forward linkages effects and boost the GDP of the country. As per the report of CBRE these projects contribute to 40 % of the country's total inventory. Next Opportunity lies in form of geriatric care services. According to a 2022 analysis by Coherent Market Insights the value of India's geriatric will be $ 42.2 billion which includes medical, non-medical and personal care contributing significantly to the growth of the economy. Another major segment of business is Travel, having a huge potential as far as this elderly population is concerned. As a usual practice, when business considers products designed for senior citizens, generally they focus on senior living, geriatric care, insurance and adult diapers. Senior citizens tend to seek community and activity together and they are seeking travel as a means to achieve it. As per the Thomas Cook, customer aged 60 + form 10-12 % of their customer base. It speaks volume about the significant role which these unsung heroes can play. There is a common misconception that they might be mobility challenged or prefer to take things slow, but we are seeing a growing number of senior citizens who are remarkably healthy. A lot of them are very active professionals, sometimes consulting or on board of companies. Even though they are not doing 9 to 5 jobs they are very active socially and physically and the itineraries they request reflect that. Senior citizens in the country are now traveling much more frequently than they did before the pandemic, both domestically and internationally. In response, travel companies like Thomas Cook are offering special packages tailored for those over 60. This increase in travel among seniors is largely due to their greater financial stability, increased leisure time after retirement, and overall improvements in accessible healthcare. Destinations such as Varanasi, Ayodhya, and Shirdi, as well as Pune, Srinagar, Surat, and Bangalore, are seeing double-digit year-on-year growth in flight bookings, with senior citizens making a significant contribution to this trend.

The above discussion indicates that senior citizens may play an active role as far as the demographic dividend of the country is concerned, but catering to this cohort requires a lot of creative in-depth understanding their needs and aspiration. The untapped potential which this class represents, can contribute significantly to the process of the development. Japan has set an example in this direction and Indian has a lot to learn. Japan is well ahead of the curve when it comes to catering to the elderly. They are rethinking everything, from public transport to roads, from product labelling to call centres and digital support for the elderly. Now it's the call of the business how they come with creative ideas to reap this opportunity.

The United Nations Security Council & The Global Weapon Trade

The United Nations (UN), established to save future generations from the scourge of war, faces significant challenges in the modern era. The Security Council (UNSC) and International Court of Justice frequently address conflicts like the Israel-Palestine issue, highlighting the global weapons trade's impact on these crises. American weapon companies like Raytheon and General Dynamics have seen substantial stock gains from such conflicts, reflecting the profitability of war for the arms industry. The U.S., under a military aid package, significantly supplies Israel's arms, accounting for 92% of its imported weapons. The U.S. arms exports reached $205.6 billion in 2022, supplying weapons to countries including Israel and several Arab nations, revealing the UNSC's hypocrisy as its members are major arms exporters. This fuels conflicts worldwide, making the UNSC's role questionable. The top arms exporters—U.S., Russia, France, China, and the UK—constitute over 75% of global arms exports. Given this, the UN adopting a resolution to curtail arms exports seems unlikely. Russia, Israel, and other nations also export arms, with Israel being the 10th largest exporter. Despite geopolitical alignments, arms trade continues unabated. Russia, for instance, supplies arms to both India and Pakistan, highlighting the complex dynamics of the global arms trade. The private sector's involvement, like Russia's Wagner Group and Israel's cybermercenaries, further complicates the issue. These groups operate in conflict zones for profit, often hired by governments and private companies. For example, Wagner Group's activities in various African nations are driven by economic interests. The global political landscape is anarchic, with alliances and enmities shifting based on nations' needs. The UNSC's functioning in this context appears flawed, but the fault lies more with nation-states pursuing their interests rather than with the UN itself. Diplomacy and compromise are crucial for resolving conflicts, yet they are often lacking. Wars, though harmful to human rights, serve political purposes, offering prestige and power dynamics. To revive the UN, a cultural shift toward compassion and humanity is essential. A global effort is needed to prioritize peace over power, viewing the world through a humanitarian lens to secure a safe future for coming generations.

SOHS EVENTS HIGHLIGHTS

1. Interactive Session on Global Issues

On 3rd May 2024, the School of Humanities partnered with AIESEC Delhi University (MoU partner) for an impactful event titled "Interactive Session on Global Issues". The event commenced with a warm welcome from Prof. (Dr.) Tania Gupta, Dean of SOHS, extending gratitude to Mr. Guruday Singh, Coordinator of AIESEC Delhi University, and his team for their collaboration. The highlight of the event was the dynamic "World Café" activity led by Mr. Singh and his team. Divided into groups, students fervently discussed topics including digital privacy, the importance of elections, and the contemporary role of college education. Over a hundred students from diverse academic backgrounds and faculty members from SOHS participated with great enthusiasm. The event served as a catalyst for dialogue on global issues and provided an inclusive platform for students to articulate their perspectives.

ALUMNI CORNER

Arshleen Sodhi (Alumni, B.A. (H) Economics Batch 2021-24)

My journey at KRMU has been nothing short of a fun rollercoaster. It was an amalgamation of learning, joyful experiences and holistic personality development. I was lucky enough to get the support of my really helpful professors who were a guiding light at all points. My achievements were always given recognition. I was appreciated by everyone around me that gave me further boost up to excel in all fields. The Chancellor's Excellence Award and a 100% sponsored trip to United Kingdom will always be close to my heart and I will always cherish my "good-old" days with K.R.Mangalam! As I put my forward into the professional arena, I carry the invaluable lessons, the treasure of knowledge imparted by my professors and the legacy of the university.

Simran (Alumni, B.A. (H) Psychology Batch 2021-24)

"I am incredibly grateful to K.R. Mangalam University for the opportunity to join their esteemed institution as a BA Honours Psychology student. From day one, I've felt supported by both my professors and peers, which has made a real difference in my academic journey. The courses are challenging yet rewarding, and I've already grown so much—both personally and in my understanding of psychology. I'm excited to see where this path takes me." –

Anushka Batra (Alumni, B.A. (H) Psychology Batch 2021-24)

"Joining K.R. Mangalam University as a BA Honours Psychology student has been a turning point in my life. The faculty here is truly invested in our success, offering both knowledge and encouragement at every step. The university's environment pushes me to think deeper and aim higher, and I've felt a real sense of community here. I'm so thankful for this opportunity to learn, grow, and make the most of my passion for psychology." –
